

Public Policy Capstone Seminar Faculty Advisor

Public Policy Capstone students are supported by a faculty subject-matter expert and your instructor to answer a carefully defined policy question. It is the responsibility of the student to identify and secure the support of the faculty expert as soon as possible. During the semester, it is the student's responsibility to use their faculty expert's time efficiently, effectively, and respectfully. A list of faculty members who are affiliated with the Roosevelt House Public Policy Program and willing to serve as subject-matter experts has been posted to Blackboard. You are also free to ask professors who are not listed if they are willing to work with you this semester.

Asking a member of faculty to supervise an independent study is different from requesting a faculty member for their expertise and guidance during the Capstone class. Your work with your faculty expert is designed to be no more than two hours per semester. Expectations of faculty are that they serve as experts to help you frame your ideas, to recommend resources, to provide guidance on empirical work, etc. These conversations may occur by email, during the faculty member's regularly scheduled Office Hours, or by appointment.